

Digitally Leveraging Language Archives (DiLLA)

Una Europa Seed Funding Call 2024

Abstract

The Digitally Leveraging Language Archives (DiLLA) project aims to promote use of materials held in university language and dialect archives for academic research, including in linguistics, dialectology, and folklore.

The project brings together established and early-career researchers at universities which currently hold rich but often underutilised archival materials (University College Dublin/An Coláiste Ollscoile Baile Átha Cliath, University of Edinburgh) with others who specialise in state-of-the-art digital methods in corpus linguistics and the digital humanities (Universität Zürich, Uniwersytet Jagielloński w Krakowie).

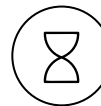

By seeding these connections, DiLLA opens avenues for future use of such materials and encourages greater institutional, cultural, and individual engagement with these materials and aims to ensure informed access for researchers, students, and indeed the general public.

Project Coordinator
Connor McCabe
University College Dublin/An Coláiste Ollscoile
Baile Átha Cliath
connor.mccabe@ucd.ie

Participating institutions
University College Dublin/An Coláiste Ollscoile
Baile Átha Cliath
University of Edinburgh
Universität Zürich
Uniwersytet Jagielloński w Krakowie

Duration
January 2025 – December 2025

Budget
€11,835

