

Unveiling University Heritage in the Digital Era: Virtual Museum Exhibitions as a Transnational Practice (Muse-unveiling)

Una Europa Seed Funding Call 2024

Abstract

This Muse-unveiling project aims to create two virtual exhibitions of university collections across Europe on environmental heritage and contested heritage in university museums, through the involvement of students and other cultural stakeholders.

Although university museums have attracted some scholarly attention (also through workshops organised by Una Europa), their contribution to the main challenges of the present has been largely ignored.

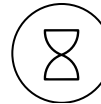

By highlighting the interconnectedness of European academic and cultural history, the project fosters a multi-layered European identity and promotes cross-cultural dialogue. It addresses issues of diversity, equality, and inclusion by ensuring broad accessibility and by incorporating multiple perspectives into the curatorial process.
